Keira McKenna has lived her life protected that's what happens when your father testifies against Boston's Irish mob. After years of move after move, Witness Protection settled her in Wyoming. Unfortunately, while Keira embraced her new small-town life, her larger-than-life past wouldn't stay away. And with it, the one man she'd never forget. Four years ago, one massive mistake made Archer Reynolds resign from Boston's police force. Moving home, he opened Reynolds Protective Group an elite bodyguard agency to atone for his failure. But when a series of crimes occur in town, he comes face-to-face with the woman whose name was apparently as fake as her death. Archer can't believe Keira is alive, more beautiful and fiery than he remembered, and still in danger. The police insist the crimes were random, but Keira knows the mob has found her. Archer is determined to protect her, but after her last lie, Keira isn't sure she can trust him with the truth. And as desire mounts, so does danger. And once Archer uncovers the truth about her past, he'll stop at nothing to keep her safe and make her his.
