Hannah Holiday is new to Hooks Harbor, Maine. With the inheritance of her Great Aunt Caroline's caf and cottages, she faces a challenge of turning it into a modern business. A challenge she is ready for-until a body turns up in an unexpected place. With her own insecurities rising when she becomes a suspect, Hannah must decide who in Hooks Harbor she can trust, and who is really out to get her-Her elderly neighbor? The handsome carpenter? A former employee of the caf? The list grows. Hannah's life-and reputation-depends on her ability to make quick decisions. Will she get herself out of this nightmare and get her business moving forward before time runs out? If you love a good culinary cozy mystery, grab Gunpowder Chowder and get hooked on Hannah Holiday's adventures.
