(Any cat in any tree, not specific) Example: I saw an axe. Proper nouns do not take articles, but a/an is used to make them common nouns. 'The' is used to refer to specific or particular nouns, and 'a/an' is used to modify no specific nouns. The words 'a', 'an' and 'the', known as articles, present problems for most speakers of English as an additional language. (refer to a random axe) Rule A/An is used to convert a proper noun into a common one. They can be mistaken for singular nouns, waiting for a person to place a or an Two types of articles can be placed before a noun: definite (the) and indefinite (some/a/an). The use of each article depends on whether specific or general reference is made to any member of a group Measurements and rates also take the indefinite article: Three times a week If the noun starts with a vowel sound, then the article an is used: an ear, an uncle, an hour If the noun starts with a consonant sound, then the article a is used: a school, a university The Indefinite Articles "A" and "An" What are "a" and "an"? Example: She thinks she is an Elizabeth Queen. We call 'The' definite Articles (a/an/the), SpringofHowever, there are some exceptions to this rule. "A" and "an" are the two forms of indefinite articles in English. They are used when you are talking about something non-specific or for the first time. RuleThe indefinite article 'a' or 'an' is sometimes used to refer to numbers If you are unsure when to use these words and when to There are two articles in English The and A /An. This is not surprising, since there is no equivalent Adjective and AdverbsDownloadable PDF Worksheets for English Language LearnersIntermediate Level (B1) Consider the following examples of indefinite articles used in context: Please hand me a book; any book will do. They are never made plural because they are not divided into parts by themselves. Articles "A" and "An" - Examples: I saw a cat in a tree. For example, you cannot say two waters or two salts. Please hand me an autobiography; any autobiography will do Articles are three tricky words: 'the' (called the definite article), 'a' and 'an' (together referred to as indefinite articles).
