

Detox And Recovery Support: Planning For Safety

Safety planning is important, especially when withdrawal risks are possible. If someone has severe symptoms, thoughts of self harm, web page or medical complications, emergency care should be used immediately. For planned admissions, programs may coordinate screening and referrals and may recommend detox support when appropriate based on clinical assessment