“It’s a peculiar apparatus,” said the Officer to the Traveller, gazing with a certain admiration at the device, with which he was, of course, thoroughly familiar. · Main Characters: The explorer: A respected visitor who witnesses the execution in the penal colony. Translation by Ian Johnston. The officer: Responsible for operating the strange execution A traveler in a penal colony witnesses a complex torture and execution machine that writes in the flesh of prisoners with needles, before letting them die. As in some of Kafka's other writings, the narrator in this story seems detached from, or perhaps numbed by, events that one would normally expect to be registered with horror. At least there wasn’t anyone else present there in this low lying valley—a rather small valley with sandy soil that was surrounded on all sides by bare cliffs—nobody else but this officer, the traveler, the convicted man (someone who appeared as being somewhat of a brute, a bear of In the Penal Colony) is a short story by Franz Kafka. Blood and water together are then conducted here through small runnels into this main runnel and down a waste pipe into the pit.’ In the Penal Colony. by Ian Johnston This translation, which has been prepared by Ian Johnston of Malaspina University execution was not very high even in the penal colony itself. The long needle does the writing, and the short needle sprays a jet of water to wash away the blood and keep the inscription clear. The story is set in an unnamed penal colony. by Franz Kafka.
