A calculus nerd enlists her surly classmates help to win back her ex-boyfriend, but when sparks start to fly, she realizes theres no algorithm for falling in love. Marlowe Meadows understands a lot of things. She understands that calculus isnt overwhelmingly beautiful to everyone, and that it typically kills the mood when you try to talk Python coding over beer pong. She understands that people were surprised when golden boy Josh asked her out and she went from weird, math-obsessed Marlowe to half of their schools couple goals. Unfortunately, Marlowe was the one surprised when Josh dumped her because hed prefer a girlfriend who's more romantic. One with emotional depth. But Marlowe has never failed anything in her life, and she isnt about to start now. When shes paired with Ashton Hayes for an English project, his black clothing and moody eyeliner cause a bit of a systems overload, and the dissonant sounds of his rock band make her brain itch. But when she discovers Ash's hidden stash of love songs, Marlowe makes a desperate deal to unleash her inner romantic heroine if Ash will agree to help her write some love letters to win back Josh, shell calculate the perfect data analytics formula to make Ash's band go viral. As the semester heats up with yearning love notes, a syllabus of romance novels, and late nights spent with a boy who escapes any box her brain tries to put him in, Marlowe starts to question if theres really a set solution to love. Could a girl who's never met a problem she can't solve have gotten the math so massively wrong?
