68 poems about love, grief, life, joy, and the sentience of all that surrounds us. We live in a world filled with nature, and whether you like it or not-we're nature, too. If you think that the grass you walk on isn't as alive as you, please put this book down. Or not. Maybe one of these poems will change your mind. This is A Camera's Eyes: a collection of poems written throughout the course of 2 years about how I see the world.
