Travel, teamwork, and tacos. That's what it was supposed to be. Not feelings, frenching, and fistfights. Halo-or Lo to her friends-was ready for something big. A nomad by birthright and surfer by choice, she jumps at the chance to leave her day job and compete for a major sponsorship. But there happens to be a catch. Brady Samson-Lo's new teammate and travel companion is none other than the handsome stranger she might have made-out with during a recent magical evening. Can they keep things professional while in romantic and exotic places? Or will the small spark they started grow into something worth fighting for? Like the Back of My Halo is the first book in the Soaring Bird series but can be read as a standalone. PG17 for language, mild heat, an annoying ex, and unexpected moments of personal bravery. Prepare yourself for feelings.
