One of the Jewish texts and source sheets about Parsha Ketoret from Torah, Talmud and other sources in Sefaria's library PITTUM HA-KETORET (Heb. The document discusses the ketoret, or incense, used daily in the Temple. Clearly, ketoret is a most Its purity and perfection are what give the ketoret the power to sweeten the foulest of odors; but dealing with evil is not what it is all about. No Kohen ever did it twice in order to give all the Kohanim the chance to do it at least once. On the contrary, its highest expression is in the utterly evil-free environment of the Holy of Holies on Yom Kippur The ketoret was a special blend of eleven herbs and balms whose precise ingredients and manner of preparation were commanded by G-d to Moses. The Ketoret is translated as incense. The ketoret was so desirable that the Kohanim had to wait to do it. The word ketoret means bonding or connecting. This bonding, as we shall see, is necessary to build the unity of the body of Mashiach. פְּטוּם הַקְּטֹרֶת; "ingredients of the incense"), the initial words of a baraita (Kera and TJ, Yoma,d) which enumerates the various species of e download as PDF File.pdf), Text File.txt) or read online for free.
