Wiesel's emotional and thought-provoking memoir deals with the issues of survival, identity, death, morality and religious faith. In, Primo Levi, a twenty-five-year-old chemist and "Italian citizen of Jewish race," was arrested by Italian fascists and deported from his native Turin to Auschwitz. Primo Levi's account is a subtle blend of compassion and detachment Levi began writing his recollection of Auschwitz in, finishing the Italian manuscript by the end of University of South Florida The paper seeks to study two memoirs written by holocaust survivors-Night by Elie Wiesel and Survival in Auschwitz by Primo Levi.
