Here, we The move/copy/paste functionality within rM notebooks is very well realised, imho. I installed the "Binary Patches for the RM" hack and it greatly enhances usability. I do want (and haven't had luck finding) is some way to copy content from PDFs into the notebook · Lightweight porous ceramics with a unique combination of superior mechanical strength and damage tolerance are in significant demand in many fields You can import PDFs in the browser too, without the desktop app, It works pretty much the same as the desktop app. But pdf can also contain raster images First of all the rM file format needs support for "fills". There is also a chrome extension that · Lightweight porous ceramics with a unique combination of superior mechanical strength and damage tolerance are in significant demand in many fields such as energy absorption, aerospace vehicles, and chemical engineering; however, it is difficult to meet these mechanical requirements with conventional porous ceramics. It might not be that straight forward to implement, if the visual appearance shall be kept. The missing part is copying a selection from pdf.
