Stacey Weir didn't mean to become an amateur detective - but when the man who saved her as a teenager is accused of murder, there was only one thing for her to do... Stuntwoman Stacey Weir isn't intending to do anything other than her job on the movie set of Hard Action Five. But when a series of set mishaps turns deadly, and her adopted father - Gil Ballantine, aka Mr. Fall - is accused of being involved, Stacey takes matters into her own hands. Armed with her stunt and martial arts training, relying on her wealth of knowledge of movies, and supported by friends and her stunt family, Stacey's investigation annoys the police - but it makes the bad guys more determined to stop her. Soon it's clear that there's more going on than just a set in disarray, and before too long it's clearer that Stacey's at the center of the danger. Survival isn't a given, and neither is clearing Gil's name. So it's a good thing Stacey has help from the oldest living stuntman, some high school movie buffs, and the hottest actor to come out of Hong Kong in a long time. Whether all that help will be enough to save her and everyone else, though, is the question. But Stacey's pretty sure she's the answer. Meet a heroine worthy of Gini Koch's Katherine "Kitty" Katt and a twisty mystery that will keep you guessing until the end.
