I'll finish the race when I wake up and still beat you by miles.' That tortoise will never beat me! As soon as the race started, the hare dashed The Hare was once boasting of his speed before the other animals. He didn't stop until he got to the end of You can start, you know.' 'I have started,' said the Tortoise. Oh! what fun! All of the animals gathered at the finish line to see who would win. The Hare now ran his swiftest, but he could not overtake the Tortoise in time. The wise tortoise thought he was a show-off so he asked the hare for a race. Slow and steady wins the race The hare raced along the road. After a thought the hare. "I have never yet been beaten," said he, "when I put forth my full speed. Further along the track, the Hare ided that she had time for a quick sleep. Soon the hare had reached the race's halfway point. "I have plenty of time," he said to himself. But the Hare slept on very peacefully; and when at last he did wake up, the Tortoise was near the goal. The tortoise kept going. The hare sat down by a tree. She settled down underneath a huge tree, The Hare was once boasting of his speed before the other animals. A race, indeed, a race. The Tortoise said quietly, "I accept your challenge." Might even have a little sleep. a race, of course, Mr. Tortoise, we shall race! said the hare. Far behind him the tortoise plodded steadily along. All of the animals gathered at the finish line to see who would win. "I have never yet been beaten," said he, "when I put forth my full speed. My, my! I challenge any one here to race with tortoise. The hare thought he would easily beat the tortoise. The Tortoise kept going The Tortoise meanwhile kept going slowly but steadily, and, after a time, passed the place where the Hare was sleeping. "That is a good joke," said the Hare; "I could dance round you all the way." It was obvious to one and all that the hare was in a great hurry, and it seemed he would surely win. I challenge any one here to race with me.". The hare thought he would easily beat the tortoise. The forest animals met and mapped out the The tortoise set off at a slow speed, just trundling along. The Hare lay down in the sun and fell asleep. As soon as the race started, the hare dashed ahead. 'Look,' said the Hare. The hare soon fell asleep. "I must be miles ahead of that old slowpoke tortoise by now The Tortoise and the Hare Once, there was a strong, young hare who bragged about how fast he could run. he thought. 'You're going so slowly I'm going to have a rest.
